Plans for statewide organization of the Georgia division of the Young Democrats of America were formulated hurriedly here yesterday as Pitt Tyson Maner, of Montgomery, newly elected president of the national organization, paid a brief visit to Atlanta. A membership drive is to be launched at a state convention to be held here this fall. Maner is shown being welcomed at the Terminal station. The Young Democrat president is on the left. Next are E. D. Rivers Jr. and Miss Louisa Robert, junior national committeeman and committeewoman, while on the extreme right is Governor Rivers.

the organization which is planned for Atlanta some time in October. "The Young Democrats of America has developed into a power-ful organization and we are sorry that heretofore little or nothing has been done in the way of organizing Georgia," Maner said. "How-ever, we feel that we can easily obtain 20,000 members in this state and we are setting that number as our goal."

winter legume plantings this fall. Crimson clover, the county agent pointed out, can be used for soil improvement, soil conserva-tion, for pasture, for hay, and for seed—one of the few five-way crops that fit into a balanced farm

"As a soil improvement crop, crimson clover gives growths of four to eight tons of green fertilizer per acre, which when turned under, adds to the soil an amount of nitrogen equivalent to 300 to 600 pounds of nitrate of soda,"

As a soil conserving crop, he added, the dense growth protects the soil from heavy rains during the winter, and the root system helps to hold the soil particles in

The clover also makes hay of an excellent quality, the county agent said, adding protein when mixed with small grains. Seed of the crimson clover, ranging from 300 to 500 pounds per acre, last year brought farmers a fair price, he added.

STORE ANNOUNCES TWO PROMOTIONS

Lagomarsino and Pincus Davison-Paxon Executives.

The promotion of Chess Lagomarsino to advertising manager and Benard Pincus to merchandise councilor in charge of the basement division was announced yesterday by R. A. Kline, vice president and general manager of the Davison-Paxon Company.

The promotion of these two young executives is in line with the company's policy to fill top positions with people from the store's personnel.

Mr. Lagomarsino is a native Atlantan, having joined the Davison-Paxon Company immediately after leaving Emory University in 1926. He has taken a great interest in civic affairs, having been a past director of the Junior Chamber of commerce and golf champion of that organization.

While at Emory Mr. Lagomarsino was a member of the Glee Club that toured Europe with such success. He is a member of the Exchange Club and the Atlanta

Athletic Club. Mr. Pincus has been a resident of Atlanta and a member of the Davison-Paxon staff for the past nine years. Last year he lectured at the Atlanta University of Commerce on English and American literature. He is a well-known member of Atlanta's literary cir-

HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS POURED INTO FARMERS' POCKETS

COTTON CONTINUES Livestock Development Special Spurs Renewed Agricult ural Interest in South Georgia DALTON TO LAUNCH TO TOP INCOME LIST FOR EMPIRE STATE

Peach and Tobacco Losses Are Offset by Successes in Other Fields.

More than $300,000,000 in spendable cash income is being poured this year into the pockets of agricultural Georgia, with cotton, clinging firmly to its throne, contributing the lion's share of new and the dread blue mold which ravaged and reduced its peach and tobacco crops, respectively, the state has been generally heartened by marked successes with other crops, notably cotton, grains, pea-nuts and livestock, which constiute its major bulwarks against adversity in other fields. Farm wealth has been bolstered also by fruits and nuts, potatoes, truck crops and dairy products—and by one new industry which this year reached notable proportions, the growing and shipment of tomato and other young plants for distribution as far north as Canada.

Announcement yesterday by Frank C. Ward, Georgia head of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, that approximately $11,059,205 will be distributed to Georgia farmers under the 1936 conservation program clearly in-dicated the wholehearted co-operation farmers are giving the federal program.

A further clear reflection of farmer-confidence in the general economic outlook is seen in the fact the state's fertilizer sales, up to July 1, totaled more than 832,-000 tons—an increase of approximately 150,000 tons over the total for all of 1936.

A recent estimate of the cotton crop fixed it at approximately 1,282,000 bales, as compared with 1,090,000 bales, which last year brought a total of more than $67,-000,000 revenue. Cottonseed will add many more millions of dol-

After a dusty tot around the

After a dusty trot around the stockyards, and talks with pack-ing house representatives, livestock reporters and a representa-tive of the Institute of American Meat Packers, he is able to report that the drouth of 1934 and 1935 and the AAA have something to do with it.

None would give him an argument—all agreed that the meat to-day, at a record high price, is not as good as it was a few years ago when prices were lower.

Choice steaks were selling at 75 to 85c a pound in city butcher shops today that sold around 40 to 50 cents a year or so ago. Consumers have complained that these steaks are not as good as they used to be when they were cheaper. What little corn the farmer did have he sold at the high prices which prevailed in the drouth years in order to live.

The result has been that the cattle coming to market today and bringing new high prices (choice steers were $18.25, a 9-year seasonal top today) are not as sleekly finished as the cattle from which came the pre-depression steaks in 1928 and 1929.

The Great Bangor Fire

On April 6, 1911, Bangor, Maine, was getting ready for the influx of the rich New Englanders who were coming for their summer residence. It was a busy week and the thrifty shop-keepers and innkeepers knew that it would be a rich harvest for them. But, on April 7th their jaws hung in pitiful contemplation of a fire which ravaged the entire city. Thousands of homes and all of the summer hotels were destroyed. The loss exceeded $3,500,000,00.

Controlled Fires Burn in Atlanta

Homes are properly and economically fueled with Randall's Guaranteed Coal, since 1885.

Fortunately, Atlanta has experienced few conflagrations in its history. Partly because we have one of the most efficient fire-fighting departments in this country.

But controlled fires, which supply heat to thousands of Atlanta homes, Randall's Guaranteed Coal has been used with greatest satisfaction for 52 years.

It will soon be time to order fuel to warm your home. Let us prescribe the kind best suited to the type of burner used, and you, too, will be comfortable thruout the fall and winter season.

HAMMER SLAYER OF WIFE CONFESSES

Evangelist Blames 'Devil' as He Waits Grand Jury Action in Jersey.

LINDEN, N. J., Aug. 28.—(A)— With a calm "I did it, that's all," a 44-year-old evangelist resigned himself today to facing the law on charges he hammered to death his gospel-preaching wife.

Quietly, Lloyd Pusey, one-time farmer and ex-tavern singer, admitted the slaying at his arraignment on a murder charge in police court. Sadly and yet coolly, he went off to a Union county jail cell to await grand jury action.

Earlier he wept as he told Police Chief Frank Hickey, the chief said, that "the devil tried to rip our marriage apart." Six feet three inches tall and weighing 170 pounds, he told police, Hickey related, that his 130pound, red-haired wife several times threatened to kill him. Last night, Hickey quoted him as say-ing, "I decided to get my licks in first."

In the car, Hickey said, police found a letter written by Mrs. Pu-sey and address to "police and de-tectives" which told of several al-leged attempts to kill her. "He tried to kill me again," Hickey said the letter, written in Arizona,

DESPERADO'S TRAIL

Accused Kidnaper - Slayer Believed To Have Lost Self in Carolina Wilds.

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 28.— (UP)—The search for William Payne, 41-year-old accused kidnap-slayer, moved to the lonely slopes of middle North Carolina tonight as police said they believed he had eluded the manhunt of nundreds of state, city and county officers.

Payne, credited with the slaying of a state highway patrolman and the kidnaping of three persons within the last week, was be-lieved to have lost himself in the sparsely settled regions of middle North Carolina, his home.

Posses of patrolmen and sheriff's deputies lost the trail after the escaped convict fired an automobile belonging to C. V. Blount, a cotton textile worker, early today at Siler City, N. C. According to Blount, three men

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 .- (A)-Rails provided a little rallying steam for today's stock market, but many issues failed to get back on the upgrade.

It was the slowest short session in about six weeks, transfers amounting to only 254,300 shares, compared with 280,580 last Satur-The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged

The Shanghai scene was still a matter for worry to those who fear international complications may emerge from the Sino-Japanese conflict, but war tension, on the whole, seemed to have lessened somewhat as a market fac-

Steel Orders Drop.

Declining steel orders and other spotty business conditions tended to keep many traders in neutral territory. Some quick-turn buying was reported on the theory list was due for at least temporary come-back because of the recent sharp downturn.

At the same time numerous commission house customers, seeing few chances of profit in trying to guess the current erration market trends, failed to attend the two-hour proceedings and most board rooms were virtually de-

Nibbling at carrier shares were attributed to the belief in finan-cial quarters the wage controversy will be settled by mediation and that a strike is unlikely. In addition it was not overlooked that the Associated Press rail average dipped to a new low for the year this week.

Emil Leonard Allows Chicks Five Hits as Crackers Win, 3-1

RAIN PREVENTS SECOND BATTLE WITH MEMPHIS

Doubleheader Slated Today Beginning at Two O'Clock.

By JACK TROY. Delayed by train and rain, the Crackers finally hooked up with the Memphis Chicks in a single game yesterday and made the most of it, capturing the contest, 3 to 1, behind the expert five-hit pitch-ing of Emil Leonard.

Big Dutch knuckled down on the Chicks, spreading the five hits masterfully across as many innings. The lone Memphis run came as the result of an infield

Lou Bush bunted and beat it out, Leonard making a play for Bush but getting the ball to Hooks late. Bush went to second on a passed ball. Grace flied to Mailin deep right and Bush took third after the catch.

MISSES SHUT OUT.

Then McCoy bounced to Hooks, sible wet ball and made the putout at first rather than try Bush at the plate to the disap-pointment of some 927 wet-weather fans.

And so there went Leonard's shutout in the first inning. But it did not detract from a great pitching performance which sig-nalized the Crackers' return home for eight games.

Tereafter, Andy Reese got the hardest blows off Leonard's de-livery—a double and a line single. In the sixth, a walk and an infield error with only one man out promised trouble, but Leonard came out of this situation with

CHICKS IN CHECK. And thereafter he kept the Chicks under his protecting right wing. It was his 12th victory of

The Crackers quickly recaptured the lead after the Chicks had pushed over their single run in the first. It was in the second that Hooks lined a single to right and Richards' smashed a single off Peerson's glove. Chatham was called out on strikes, but Marshall Mauldin doubled off the fence in left, scoring both runners.

The Crackers didn't give Doyle any further trouble until the sixth. Mailho walked with one man out and Eddie Rose slapped a double ing Mailho from first. Doyle retired in favor of a pinch hitter, Chick Frazier, in the eighth, but Frazier popped to Luby, Bush flied to Mailho, Grace grounded to Hooks and Cummings, who had led off the inning with a single, was left stranded on first.

Leonard set the Chicks down in order in the ninth, Spencer hav-ing done likewise to the Crackers in their half of the eighth.

QUITE A BALL GAME.

It was quite a ball game, requiring only an hour and 17 minutes to complete after once it was started. Doyle allowed only seven hits, but the Crackers managed to get them at the right time.

The delay in starting the scheduled double-header was caused, in the begining, by the Memphis team's train being 45 minutes late. So when the Chicks finally did get to the park and in uniform, a steady drizzle set in. Since it was not possible to start play until after 4 o'clock, a single game was agreed upon.

There will be a double-header today, starting at 2 o'clock. Durham and Beckman will pitch for the Crackers and Benton and Martynik are expected to do the pitching chores for the second-

The rained-out game will be played on Monday, which originally was scheduled as an off day.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 28.—(P)—Johnny Goodman, the boy who came from the other side of Omaha's railroad tracks to become one of the world's top-notch golfers, climaxed a 10-year quest by winning the national amateur championship today.

He defeated Ray Billows, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., comparative newcomer to major tournament competition, on Alderwood Country Club course, 2 up, as the windup of one of the most thrill-packed championships in many a year.

It was a grand finale to a week of blistering rounds that saw the defending title-holder, Johnny Fischer, shoved out by a lop-sided score; three former champions beaten and Old Man Par mauled Suspends

Billows, the 23-year-old printing company employe who first swung a club six years ago and drove to his first big tournament in one of those automobile junkheaps college boys buy for $7.50, beat the defending titleholder but he couldn't overcome the Goodman jinx.

Restlessness Discovered Among Jacket Heads; Dean Teaches Yearlings.

By JACK TROY.

Waiting around to see the offi-cials run yesterday morning at Grant field was almost comparable to attending a track meet that had been held the day before.

There was no morning race because at the very moment up-town the officials were engaged in a heated floor battle being waged in an effort to either delay or modify the program.

The time at Grant field was not ill-spent, however, for in the office of Coach W. A. Alexander the talk was of football. And there was a restlessness among the coaches gathered there which be-spoke more than words the fact that practice begins on Wednes-

Roy McArthur, who will handle the freshmen, was pacing the floor. Finally Major, who handles the Tech equipment, said, "Mac, you come back to the dressing rooms. I want to fix you up with an outfit."

And so McArthur went.

Chief among the skirmishes with "foreign foes" are Georgia's tussle with Holy Cross at Boston; Vanderbilt's jousts with Chicago and Southern Methodist: Mississippi State's tilts with Texas A. & M and Duquesne and Georgia Tech's late December journey to Berkeley to meet California's Bears.

Vanderbilt, with games billed against six conference enemies, apparently has one of the toughest cards of the Big Thirteen array. Three clubs, Florida, Tennessee and Auburn, have seven contests. Auburn's setup is going to be one thorn after another.

For the first time since the early days of the season Joe "Ducky" Medwick is in danger of losing the batting lead for the National league championship. The slugging Cardinal outfielder tumbled 10 points from .400 to .390 during the week, and only has a scant three-point margin over Paul Waner, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who has a reputation of being a strong

Paul held his mark of .387 squarely during the week. Gab-by Hartnett, of the Chicago Cubs, checked his slump of the last two weeks and picked up three points to hold third place with .375. Ernie Lombardi, of the Reds, went on a hitting rampage, mustering eight base knocks in nine trips to the plate to push his mark 20 points to 371, which ousted Johnny Mize, of the Cardinals, from fourth place. Mize maintained his 364 average.

pan O'Connor, sensational young Irish heavyweight, has earned, by virtue of a series of extraordinary performances in Atlanta, a shot at the world's champion, Everett Marshall, on Wednesday night at the ball park.

Marshall is recognized as champion in 27 states and by the National Wrestling Association. Bronko Nagurski, who has refused thus far to meet Marshall under any conditions, is the other title claiment.

It will be the Dazzling Dane's third appearance here. He defeated Orville Brown in a brilliant match and returned later to spill Chief Chewchki twice in 18 minutes. Red Sox Give Cash and Players for Three Stars; Travs Buy Rookies.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 28.—(P)—Three stars who are helping to lead the Little Rock Travelers toward their first Southern association pennant in 17 years have been sold to the Boston Red Sox for an unannounced sum of cash and players, Manager Doc Prothro announced today.

They are Pitcher Byron Humphreys, Second Baseman Al Niemiec and Centerfielder Leo Nonnenkamp. Humphreys and Niemiec were sold outright. The Red Sox bought Nonnenkamp conditionally, having until June 1, 1938, to make a final decision. The trio will report to the Boston training camp next spring.

Players which the American league club will send to Little Rock in the deal are Pitcher Charlie Bowers, now with Boston, and First Baseman Mahan, with Hazleton in the New York-Penn league, and others not yet named.

Latest averages credit Nonnen-kamp with a batting mark of .338, third best in the league, and Nie-miec with .317. Nonnenkamp is with 137 and is near the top in doubles, triples and stolen bases. Both are great defensive stars, Humphreys, a right-hand screw-ball hurler, is leading Southern

FINGERPRINT DRIVE

Fifth District Members To Have Identification Records Taken Here.

Clubwomen are planning to have themselves and their children fingerprinted.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, that all citizens have themselves fingerprinted as a matter of selfprotection, members of Fifth District clubs are planning to go to the Fulton county identification bureau to have their prints recorded.

The file will help in hastening identification should an accident occur and the ordinary means of identification fail.

Captain James D. Ragsdale, head of the Fulton bureau, is making arrangements to handle fingerprinting of the women and children while Mrs. E. Stewart, 645 Kennesaw avenue, N. E., chairman of the department of public welfare of the Fifth District clubs and a committee are urging women to have fingerprints of them-selves and their children taken. The Fulton bureau is expecting to install more equipment and

At 10:20 o'clock last night Ed Daws, negro, of 1104 Hubbard street, had his car stolen from in front of a grocery store at McDaniel and Mary streets. At 10:32 o'clock officers in a patrol car with two-way com-munication started chasing a speeding auto on Pryor street. It was a late model car and they could not gain on it. A call to headquarters brought other cars in the vicinity into corner the speeders. The call was placed by Lieutenant M. B. Pet-ty and his driver, W. H. Oakes. At Rawson and Pryor streets other cars blocked the speeders, four negroes jumping out and fleeing on foot. They escaped. At 10:50 o'clock Daws reported the theft to headquarters, but news of the recovery had not yet reached desk officers. Daws' car, however, is waiting for him at a local garage.

RELIEF OF TENANTS TO BE RESTRICTED

Only About 3,000 Families Expected To Get Aid During First Year.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 .- (A)-Agriculture Department officials, busy organizing a national farm tenancy program, said today that 3.000 families at the most can be made in the first year.

Milo T. Perkins, assistant to Secretary Wallace, said officials hoped during the first year to establish a "pattern" for a longtime program. There are an estimated 3,000,-000 farm tenants, renters, share croppers and laborers in this country. Even before congress provided $10,000,000 to help them lands, thousands of letters had been received here from

Lovely Atlanta Blonde and Moving Picture Show Solve Loneliness Problem of Western Bachelor

By Sally Forth.

When a handsome young man casually announces "I wish I had something to do," a pretty blonde and a picture show are good solutions to the problems. Last year, Jack Robertson, formerly of Boise, Idaho, but who resides in Atlanta now, decided one evening that the four walls of his bachelor apartment were becoming too boring, and he forthwith descended the stairs of the building to sit in the more interesting, if no more cheerful, lobby of the apartment building.

As he pondered over his apparent loneliness, a slim young blonde appeared in the lobby whom he recognized as Elizabeth Whitten. He had met the young belle, but had never been able to get a date with her. He decided to use a little psychology. When Elizabeth came within hearing distance, Jack remarked, "Gosh, but I wish I had something to do tonight."

Elizabeth, taking the hint, added, quick as a flash, "All right, take me to a movie." They went. And that movie was the first of many the duo attended during their romance, which culminates in the announcement of their engagement today. Sally is delighted to know that after her marriage to the former westerner, Elizabeth will continue to live in Atlanta, where she has been an acknowledged helle since early girlhood.

acknowledged belle since early girlhood. She spends much time, however, at St. Simons Island, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Whitten, maintain an attractive seaside cottage.

THE thrill of coming home is being enjoyed to the fullest by Wylle and Claire Hanner Arnold, who are back in Atlanta for their first visit since their departure some months ago to reside in Scarsdale, N. Y. This week end is proving an unusually exciting time, for Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Williams are entertaining them with a week-end house party at their summer home on Garmon road.

A CHALLENGE TO THE SOUTH

It becomes increasingly evident that if government, as visioned by the fathers of the American femblic is to survive and if faith in the men who wrote the federal constitution is to remain undimmed, the old-line stalwarts of Democratic faith in the south must reassume leadership and steer the party ship away from the shoals of socialistic experimentation.

There must be a renewal of allegiance to that progressive Democracy which is the birthright of southern party leaders, and away from the radicalism, or worse, which seeks to seize control of the party and launch it on a program which veers away from the basic foundations of the American system of free, democratic government

No section of the nation has given more wholehearted support than the south to the sound and progressive policies of the New Deal. It was only natural that the politically forward-looking south-the south of Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and a host of other far-visioned political masterminds-should approve efforts looking to a new understanding of social security and of equal opportunity for all-a program which lifts to new heights the fundamental ideals contained in the federal

None desire achievement of these goals more ardently than the loyal Democrats of the south. provided the road followed remains within the bounds set forth by the constitution and does not stray to the bypaths either of special privilege or class dictatorship.

At the Philadelphia convention overwhelming approval of the sound policies of the New Deal was registered in the unanimous renomination of courageous leaders under whose guidance the nation had been started back on the highway to prosperity. The voters, in turn, gave overwhelming approval and indorsement to these policies and these leaders.

Nowhere, however, in the Democratic platform adopted at the Philadelphia conventionnor in one word uttered on the floor of the convention-is there to be found a hint of any forthcoming policies which, because of their very nature, would mean a scuttling of democratic government.

At that convention the two-thirds rule for nomination of candidates was abrogated. As a result of that abandonment of an ancient safeguard for southern Democracy there are now 13 highly industrialized states in the east and north which alone command sufficient convention votes to nominate national candidates and write the party platform, regardless of the attitude of the solid south.

Those 13 states are New York, Pennsylvania. Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island. Add to this group California and their control becomes overwhelming.

In these 14 states are all the cities of the country with 1,000,000 or more population. With two exceptions only, St. Louis and Baltimore, they contain within their borders every city of 500,000 or more inhabitants.

The population of these 14 states includes 83 per cent of the foreign-born citizens, or those of foreign parentage, one parent or both.

It is from these states that nine-tenths of the radicalism in the United States springs today. It is in these states that the missionaries for strange foreign isms find the bulk of their converts. It is in the hotbeds of the growded tenements that the half-baked theorists spawn and it is from the hybrid city Bohemias that the starry-eyed liberals, the pale pinks of pastel posturings, spout their impractical schemes.

It is not to be overlooked that most of these states are normally Republican in their party allegiance. Many of the rock-ribbed strongholds of Republicanism are listed in their number and, should their sp-called Democratic leaders be permitted to retain control of the Democratic party, the anomalous result would be a party controlled by its delegates from normally enemy states

The south always has been and always will remain primarily an agrarian section. The industrialized states have different problems. They cannot be expected to understand the problems of the south. This is normal and to be expected. But the south, for her own sake, cannot permit policies formulated by industrialized groups to fit their own peculiar needs, to become the national policies of the party, without regard for the needs of the agrarian south. The south must see to it that the party, in planning its policies and drafting its platforms, gives full consideration to the needs of the agricultural sections, as well as the thickly populated industrial areas.

The policies promulgated at the last session of congress and which went down to, at least temporary, defeat because of the opposition of the old-line Democrats, mainly from the south, bear the unmistakable stigma of the radicalism that is strongest in these industrial states.

Democrats of the south have given greater allegiance to President Roosevelt than to any president since Cleveland. They hailed his broad program of benefits for the submerged portion of the population because of the great humanitarian principles it embodied. They agree wholeheartedly in the objective of social security for all and a fairer division of the comforts of life.

But they cannot, and should not, condone abandonment of the fundamental principles of the American form of government, regardless of the objectives sought. There are ways to gain the ends desired in full accord with the limitations of the constitution and southern Democracy will support with all its strength a program that sticks to this safe rule.

Southern Democrats, as a whole, will not approve any action which undermines those constitutional safeguards of the citizen and of the individual state, nor can they stand blindly by and give unquestioning allegiance to policies which array class against class, which bestow special privilege upon one group at the expense of another and which make possible the substitution of mass despotism for government by all the people for all the people.

Party loyalty is an essential of orderly government in America-but it must not be permitted to transcend adherence to the basic principles of democratic government or be used by groups or sections to invade the rights of other groups or sections. Under such conditions party loyalty becomes an evil instead of an obligation, and the duty of the officeholder or political leader is no longer to party, but to his nation and his constituents.

For more than a century the south has been loyal to Democracy. It has believed with all its political mind and strength in the Jeffersonian ideals of states' rights and the freedom of the citizen to pursue his lawful activities unhampered by unnecessary government restraint. It has held firm, through all its history, to the integrity of the federal constitution and the American system of free democracy.

The Democratic south is progressive. It recognizes that government, to live, must advance in ideals and in objectives. It is as anxious as any section or group in the nation for more equal opportunity, greater security and larger share in prosperity for all citizens.

But it appears today that the name "Democrat" has been misappropriated for a theory utterly at variance not only to the principle on which the Democratic party was founded but to the ideals of the creators of the American

It is the heritage of the south to lead the party back to solid ground.

The Democratic south can, if it will, regain its place of influence in party councils. It can lead back to the principles of Jefferson, Jackson and the fathers of freedom.

Despite the loss of the two-thirds rule as a safety valve, despite the power of the radical elements within the party ranks, the Democratic south is thrice armed because its cause is just. Holding firm to its standard of adherence to true American principle, it must win to its banner the best leadership in every state in the Union.

Southern members of congress have, this fall, opportunity to test the sentiment of their constituents. Before congress reconvenes they can, if they will, receive a mandate from the old-line Democracy of the south. They can return to Washington with the knowledge their people want them to continue the fight so well begun and to re-establish on firm foundation the Democratic party which now walks too close to the quicksands of radical experimentation.

Then, with the party once more firmly anchored to the rock of constitutional democracy, the southern Democrats can lead the nation toward achievement of those humanitarian goals which are the avowed aim of the President and which are so close to the heart of every true Democrat.

HULL IS A FIGHTER WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who has spent his term of office tearing down the tariff barriers of the world in the hope of killing what he calls "the roots of war" that sprout them, now finds himself facing the responsibility of keeping nsibility of keeping Ameri-

War, when there is no official war, is presenting acute problems to the nation's minister of foreign affairs, already faced with a situation that few secretaries of state have ever been forced to meet. e misnamed neutrality law makes Hull's job no easier. But those who know him best are thankful that the President

The secretary of state is moving from the diplomacy of peace into the fringe of war relations. How well he may acquit himself may be judged by his record.

Cordell Hull, serious, soft-voiced, white-haired, is the perfect picture of the elder statesman, courtly, wise and kind. But although he is slow to anger, once deeply stirred he has a fighting vocabulary and action to suit his words.

KNOWS TARIFF WALLS WELL Tariff walls are Mr. Hull's specialty. He has gazed across their tops so long and steadily that he knows more about internal economic policies of most countries than many of their own foreign ministers, and far more of our own than many people

At the ill-fated economic conference in London, he won the astonished respect of the foreign delegates, who were accustomed to quite a different type of minister of foreign affairs. In Europe, the foreign minister is a politician—statesman, he defines it—who the devious ways of international politics, but concerns himself far less with economics

The impetus that started Cordell Hull on his public career grew up in a school that no longer exists—the atmosphere of a country whose interest in political affairs was so keen that, as he says, "even the boys awaited election news with the same interest that they do the outcome of their college football today."

In what is now Overton county, in the mountains of Tenness where there was no railroad and travel was difficult. Cordell Hull was born on October 2, 1871.

Mr. Hull's family was not actively engaged in politics, but his father took an active interest in his son's career. The boy completed his education in the common schools and Cumberland University, in Lebanon, where he was graduated in law in 1891. The same year he was admitted to the bar and began practice in the near-by town of Celina.

FOUGHT IN WAR OF 1898 Two years passed and Cordell Hull found himself at the Tennesstatehouse, where he served as representative from 1893 to 1897. see statehouse, where he served as representative from 1000 to 100.

In the spring of 1898, came war with Spain. It was natural that this serious and energetic young man with a heritage of service should join the colors

On his return home when the war was over. Captain Hull was appointed judge of the fifth judicial district. Later, popular vote continued him in the office.

He resigned from the bench to become a candidate for congress. He was elected, and served, with only one interruption-the year of the Harding landslide-in every congress from the sixtieth to the seventy-first.

Almost as soon as Representative Hull reached Washington, his observation of men and methods brought him to a conclusion that crystallized his career. He found that the members of congress who were not specialists had little assurance of continued value or importance to their country. Therefore, he chose finance as his

DREW UP TAX SYSTEMS He was the author of the income tax system as presented in 1913, of the revised act of 1916 and of the federal estate (inheritance) tax of 1916.

When the senatorial campaign of 1930 began, much to the surprise and against the counsel of many of his friends who feared the loss of an able member of the house, Cordell Hull announced his candidacy for the senate. The vote was almost three to one in President-elect Roosevelt called in Senator Hull to talk of taxation. He remained to discuss the thorny topic of war debts. emerged from these discussions President Roosevelt's choice for the post which ranks first in his political family.

Mr. Roosevelt has never had a reason to regret his choice. Now that the nation faces a dangerous crisis in the Far East, the confidence which the President reposes in his Number One cabinet officer has made his burden lighter.

There will be no impulsive act while Secretary Hull is in charge. And "if you can keep your head while all around you are losing theirs," you make a pretty good secretary of state. (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and North American New

Third Term Amendment Opposed by Slight Majority of Voters; Farley, Garner, Earle, Barkley, Murphy Lead Popularity Poll

Vice President's Role As Peacemaker in Congress Boosts His Popularity

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—In a nation-wide poll of Democrats just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion, Postmaster General Farley, Vice President Garner and Governor Earle, of Pennsylvania, receive the highest number of mentions as possible candidates for 1940 in case Roosevelt does not

The poll, which serves as a measurement of the ebb and flow of popularity rather than a basis for any predictions about 1940, is the third of its kind conducted among Democrats by the Institute during the past eight months.

At the time of the last report, in April, Farley and Governor Earle were the two leaders. Governor Murphy, of Michigan, who ranked third in April, has slipped to fifth place in today's balloting. Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, whose name was not among the leading eight in April, ranks fourth today, undoubtedly because of his elevation to the post of majority leader in the senate.

Most remarkable of all is the meteoric rise in popularity of Vice President Garner, who ranks second today, as compared to fifth in April. His dramatic return from Texas in the role of peacemaker in the fight over the supreme court bill gave him much favorable publicity.

Following is a list of the eight leaders in today's poll as compared to the eight leaders in April:

APRIL POLL: 1—Farley, 2—Earle, 3—Murphy, 4—McNutt, 5—Garner, 6—Lehman, 7—Wallace, 8—John L. Lewis.

TODAY: 1—Farley, 2—Garner, 3—Earle, 4—Barkley, 5—Murphy, 6—Lehman, 7—Lewis, 8—McNutt and Wallace

Politicians who are experts on "availability" of candidates for public office will smile at some of the public's choices. "Availability" is the mysterious x factor which includes everything from a man's religion to his age and health. The real candidate may be a man who is comparatively unknown at present. The convention three years hence may pass over a dozen popular or prominent Democrats to pick a compromise candidate, as the Republicans did in 1920 when they nominated Harding. Three years before the 1936 election Landon had not been mentioned seriously as the G. O. P. nominee. mentioned seriously as the G. O. P. nominee.

Earle Popularity Holds Up Despite His Handling of Strikes

Since the April poll, Governor Earle has been attacked bitterly in the press for calling out the militia to protect strikers in Johnstown. He was accused of giving his official blessing to unlawful seizure of property. These attacks appear to have affected his popularity, but not to any great extent, as he still maintains his position as one of the three receiving largest number of mentions in the poll.

The recent unfavorable publicity connected with the Demo-cratic "campaign books" does not appear to have reacted against Jim Farley. The burly, good-natured party chairman, who has built up one of the most powerful political machines in recent history, continues to hold his popularity with the rank and file of Democrats. Some observers believe, however, that Farley has his eye not so much on the presidency as on the governorship of New York. Today's poll finds Farley's popularity greatest in New England and the West Central states, where he ranks No.

1. In the Middle Atlantic states, which include New York, he runs second to Governor Earle.

Vice President Garner is top man in three sections of the country—the south, the Rocky Mountain states and the Pacific coast. Ex-Governor McNutt, of Indiana, though he ranks eighth in the national balloting, leads the field in his home section—the East Central area. Political observers have reported that he is making a strong bid for the support of the Young Democratic Clubs.

position party is necessary. The best check is through a limited term for the President. To achieve this end I'm personally in favor of a six-year term without any re-election. Six years is long enough to accomplish a president's pro-gram, yet short enough to pre-be made to give up his leadership because of an amendment pro-hibiting a third term. I think the public ballot is the only fair way to choose a leader. If he has enough votes for re-election after wo terms, he deserves the of-

of the population, economically speaking.

With the agricultural elements in the party favoring a conservative like Garner, and the urban elements an out and out New Dealer like Farley, it is clear that the party's problem in 1940 will be to find a man who is acceptable to both sides.

President Roosevelt's popularity and expert generalship has served to hold the diverse elements of the party together. But it seems likely that a bitter factional fight will plague the convention which tries to pick his successor.

The growing conservatism of the farm element was indicated even in the last presidential election. Whereas Roosevelt gained 49 counties, mostly urban, as compared to the 1932 election, he lost 134 counties, of which 114 are in the middle west.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has made no gains in popularity since the Institute's April poll. In fact, he lost ground, finishing eighth today, as compared to seventh in April. Only last December, in the first Democratic popularity poll, he ranked third.

John L. Lewis, on the other hand, has gained slightly in popularity, moving up from eighth in April to seventh today.

On Third-Term Amendment | Congress on Major Bills

By Institute of Public Opinio

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Most senators and representatives are now back in their home baliwicks with their ears to the ground listening for public reaction to the activities of the seventy-fifth con-

A study of American Institute of Public Opinion polls shows that the action of congress on most major pieces of legislation met with the approval of voters. The most important exception is the wage and hour bill.

Following is a comparison of the record of congress and the views of the people as ascertained by Institute polls:

SUPREME COURT REORGANIZATION PLAN. This key piece in the President's legislative program was opposed by a sizable majority of voters for many months before it was killed in congress. Shortly after the President announced the plan, Institute polls found voters almost evenly divided, with a slight majority against it. Later, when the court had upheld the Wagner labor relations act and the social security act, and when Justice Van Devanter had left a vacancy by resigning, the majority opposed to enlarging the court grew rapidly. In the last poll the vote was 60 per cent against the court plan, 40 per cent for it.

Clearly, congress was reflecting the will of the people when it refused to approve the President's scheme.

WAGE AND HOUR BILL. Precisely the opposite is true in the case of the wage and hour bill. The principles of this measure were indorsed by an overwhelming majority of voters polled by the Institute in June. The vote was 58 per cent in favor of regulation of hours of labor, and 61 per cent in favor of minimum wage regulation. Minimum wage legislation was a specific campaign pledge in the last election. the last election.

SPENDING. When congress first convened, the President proposed one of the largest spending budgets ever submitted in time of peace. But on several occasions the national lawmakers proceeded to outdo the President by voting appropriations in excess of White House estimates.

The prevailing mood of public opinion is one of economy. In the Institute's latest poll on government spending, a huge majority fa-vored reducing expenditures and balancing the budget at the earliest

CROP CONTROL. A crop control measure was on the President's "must" list. Congress refused to take action, although it did put crop control as the first order of business for the next session. Public sentiment is not in favor of crop control, according to Institute polls, although farmers, particularly those in the south, are for it. FARM TENANCY. Congress and the public saw eye-to-eye on the measure to eliminate farm tenancy. An Institute poll last winter was the first to show that government loans to tenant farmers are overwhelmingly approved by voters. Seven months later the Bankhead-Jones act was passed, appropriating money to enable tenant farmers to buy the land they now rent.

CCC. Institute polls have found the Civilian Conservation Corps one of the most popular New Deal creations. Its extension by congress for another three years is, therefore, wholly in line with public sentiment.

NEUTRALITY. The "cash-and-carry" neutrality act passed last spring is approved in principle by voters interviewed by the Institute. Among other things, the act provides for embargoes on arms, ammunition and implements of war. Such embargoes were indorsed by an overwhelming majority in an Institute survey last year.

Sentiment on Third Term Depends Largely On Who's in Office

YEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Although President Roosevelt has declared that his ambition is to turn the presidency over to a successor in 1941, some of his more skeptical opponents have advocated a constitutional amendment to prohibit him or any other President from running for office a third time. Senator Royal S. Copeland, one of Roosevelt's bitterest enemies, was the latest to propose this measure.

A nation-wide poll just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion shows voters almost evenly divided on the third term prohibition, with a slight majority against it.

This fact will no doubt surprise students of politics. For many might suppose that since the precedent against third terms is so deeply ingrained in American political thinking, no substantial body of voters would oppose enacting it into law. Yet more than half of the voters apparently believe that the time might come when a President should run for a third term.

The poll question, submitted to a typical cross-section of voters throughout the country, was as follows: "Would you favor a constitutional amendment prohibiting any President to run for a third

Opinion on Third Term Depends on Candidate.

An analysis of the vote by parties makes it clear, however, that the public's attitude toward a third term depends largely on who is in office and how popular he is. When a party in power has a popular candidate, it is willing to see a third term. The same party, when out of office, turns thumbs down a third term.

when out of office, turns thumbs down a third term.

Because of Roosevelt's popularity with Democrats it is not surprising that in today's poll a sizable majority of Democratic voters—62 per cent—oppose an amendment to prohibit third terms. Republicans, on the other hand, are heartily in favor of the amendment, voting 67 per cent in the affirmative. In some other election year, however, the roles might be reversed.

A few weeks ago the Institute reported that a substantial majority of Democrats (57%) want Roosevelt to run for a third time. That fact, plus the results of today's voting, leads to the conclusion that unless something upsets Roosevelt's popularity, a move to redraft him in 1940 will have widespread support in the rank and file of the Democratic party. Merely pointing to third term precedent may not effectively stop such a move when, as the poll shows, 6 out of every 10 Democrats are willing to abandon the third term precedent.

Grant Third Term in 1876 Spiked by House Resolution

Between now and 1940 the President's opponents will no doubt cast about for ways of heading off a third term drive. Since the constitution says nothing about the number of terms a President may serve, most jurists believe that an amendment would be necessary to establish an iron-clad prohibition against three terms.

When the Republicans were faced with the third term issue in President Grant's administration, they used a strictly political technique in settling it. Shortly after Grant hinted that he might accept a third nomination at the end of his second term in 1876, the house of representatives spiked his candidacy by declaring in a resolution adopted 234 to 18 that a departure from custom "would be unwise, unpatriotic, and fraught with perils to our free institutions." This was an echo of George Washington's earlier pronouncement that the continuation of one man in office for a long period might jeopardize republican institutions.

The present custom of limiting a President to two terms has often republican institutions.

The present custom of limiting a President to two terms has often been criticized by historians. Lord Byrce points out that a President is tempted in his first term to "play for renomination by pandering to sections of his own party," while in his second term "he has no longer much motive to regard the interests of the nation at large, because he sees his own political death is near."

Some political scientists have suggested that these evils could be avoided by making a President ineligible for the next term, but eligible for any future term thereafter.

The founders of the southern Confederacy were sufficiently im-

The founders of the southern Confederacy were sufficiently impressed by the evils of the present system to provide that their President should be elected for one six-year term only.

Public opinion at present does not indorse this idea, however. When the Institute submitted it to voters earlier this month, a majority of 78 per cent opposed the six-year term, chiefly on the ground that "six years is too short for a good President and too long for a prove of the six-year term, chiefly on the ground that "six years is too short for a good President and too long for a prove of the six-year term, chiefly on the ground that "six years is too short for a good President and too long for a prove of the six-year term, chiefly on the ground that "six years is too short for a good President and too long for a proven of the six-year term, chiefly on the ground that "six years is too short for a good President and too long for a proven of the ground that their President should be a six-year term only.

Highlights of 141-Year-Old Controversy Over Third Term

1796: George Washington set the third-term precedent 141 years ago by refusing renomination in 1796. According to biographers, "he did not think that, in an elective government, one president should serve so long as to begin to seem like a constantly re-elected king."

1876: When President Grant hinted that he might accept renomination in 1876

1912: After Grant's effort in 1880, no attempt was made to break the third-term precedent until 1912, when Theodore Rossevelt campaigned for a third term on the Bull Moose ticket and was defeated. He split Republican votes with

What has been the effect of this session of congress on President Roosevelt's popularity?

That is the political question-of-the-hour.

Did the bitter factional fight over his supreme court plan hurt him? Has the revolt of southern conservative Democrats in congress extended down into the rank and file of New Deal voters?

The American Institute of Public Opinion keeps a continual index of Roosevelt's popularity from week to week. Next Sunday it will report the results of its latest survey on the President's standing, showing how much he has gained or lost in the last few months.

HE monotony of his humdrum existence in the little village of Ultima Thule, Okla., grated on the nerves of Jack Odell, husky 18-year-old youth, as he lounged about his mother's combination filling station and cafe on the afternoon of Sunday, October 18, 1931. Motorists passing along the graveled highway between Broken Bow, Okla., and DeQueen, Ark., seldom paused at the lone business establishment which, with a half dozen residences, constituted the village.

Mrs. Ted Futrell, mother of Odell,

Mrs. Ted Futrell, mother of Odell, was being assisted by her brother-in-law, Cleve Futrell, in the absence of her husband, away on a business trip. John Tobin, of DeQueen, stopped to have a tire repaired.

Suddenly a fusillade of shots echoed from the dense woods a few hundred yards down the road. Jack Odell leaped to his feet.

"Some one must have killed a deer," he called to his mother. "I'm going down to the woods."

Odell dashed irto the house for a pistol, then slipped a bridle on his horse and galloped down the road in the direction of the shooting. A few minutes later Mrs. Futrell heard several more shots in the woods.

An hour passed and Jack Odell did not return.

"I'm afraid something has happened to Jack," Mrs. Futrell told her brother-in-law, who agreed to accompany her to the woods to look for her son. The couple searched through the woods for an hour, but found no trace of the youth. The distracted mother returned home, hoping Jack might have followed a deer trail deep into the woods and would be returning before long.

Gib Ashford came to the Futrell home at dusk to report he had found Odell's horse in the woods and had tied the animal to a tree.

Cleve Futrell and Ashford returned to the woods and searched far into the night. Dawn found every resident of the village joining in a systematic search of the woods. They penetrated a mile into the forest of pines and oaks. Then came startling cry from one of the searchers. "Here he is—dead!"

The youth was lying face downward. His body was riddled with bullets. Sheriff Charles Holman, of McCurtain county, was summoned from Idabel, the county seat.

The sheriff knew that this section of woods along the Oklahoma-Arkansas border long had been a favorite refuge for outlaws of every type. An automobile theft ring was known to have been operating in the vicinity recently, and there were suspicions that cattle thieves were using the woods as a slaughtering place for stolen animals.

Sheriff Holman was of the opinion that young Odell had stumbled upon outlaws and had been slain because. Ahe had seen too much. The officer urged every one in the vicinity to keep his eyes open for anything that might arouse their suspicion, then returned to Idabel.

Jack Odell was buried and within a week his death almost was forgotten by all except the mother. Grief-stricken, Mrs. Futrell kept a close among the trees where her son's body had been discovered.

Wondering what could be attracting the buzzards, Mrs. Futrell asked Mark Willis and Matt Boyd, her nesrest neighbors, to investigate.

"There's another dead man near where they found Jack's body!" Willis and Boyd excitedly reported as they dashed back to the filling station a few minutes later.

Sheriff Holman was called from Idabel and the two men returned to the woods to await the officer's arrival. However, they dashed out of the woods again before Sheriff Holman could reach the scene.

"We've found another body! There are two dead men in the woods! Tell are two dead men in the woods! Tell the sheriff to hurry! There may be more!" Willis gasped. News of the finding of two additional bodies spread rapidly. Sheriff James Sutton, of Sevier county, which joins Oklahoma on the east, hurried from DeQueen to offer his aid to the Oklahoma officers.

aid to the Oklahoma officers.

The investigators found the two bodies about 40 feet apart and 300 yards from where Odell had been slain on the previous Sunday. Both were clad in their underwear and badly decomposed. One was judged to be about 60 years old ,the other about 25. The younger man had been shot through the heart from the rear, while the older victim had been shot through the heart, in the forehead and in the left wrist.

The victims' clothing was found in

The victims' clothing was found in a heap about a hundred feet from the bodies. There was no bullet holes in any of the garments. The two men had been shot to death while clad only in their underwear. There were had been shot to death while clad only in their underwear. There were no marks of identification on the clothing. Included in the pile of garments was a truss, and one black and white sport shoe. Sheriffs Holman and Sutton searched the woods thoroughly, but found no more bodies and no addi-tional cluss.

searched the woods thoroughly, but found no more bodies and no additional clues.

The obvious conclusion now was that the shots which young Odell believed had been fired by a deer hunter were the ones that had snuffed out the lives of these two men. Odell had come upon the slayer or slayers and had been killed because he had seen too much, the officers decided.

Had the two men been marched into the woods and executed? Why had they been killed; and who were they? Sheriff Holman agreed to check upon missing persons in Oklahoma, while Sheriff Sutton worked from the Arkansas angle.

The proprietor of a DeQueen hotel informed Sheriff Sutton that R. P. Ethridge, a brush salesman, had been missing from his room since the day Odell was murdered. Persons acquainted with Ethridge said he had worn a truss and black and white sport shoes. However, Ethridge was reported to be about 45 years old. His age did not check with that of either of the victims.

While trying to get some trace of either of the victims.

While trying to get some trace of Ethridge to determine how he might figure in the tragedy, Sheriff Sutton questioned persons who had passed along the road on the day Odell was slain. This quest led the sheriff to John Tobin, who had been having a tire repaired at the Futrell filling station when the youth rode away to his doom. Tobin had observed a truck loaded with sacks of grain parked alongside the road.

Sheriff Sutton recalled that an Sheriff Sutton recalled that an abandoned truck loaded with wheat had been found in a lane just outside DeQueen a day or two after Odell's death. Tobin readily identified the truck as the one he had observed parked near the murder scene.

A wire to the State Highway Department at Little Rock brought word that the licenses had been is-sued to E. S. Chappell, of Spring-dale, Ark. Reached by telephone, Mrs. Chappell informed Sheriff Sutton that her husband, a produce dealer traveling through Arkansas and Oklahoma, had been unreported for several days. The description of the selderly murder victim fitted that of her husband.

Mrs. Chappell hurried to DeQueen and positively identified the truck and positively identified the truck and part of the clothing as having belonged to her husband.

She also brought the last letter She also brought the last letter from her husband in which he revealed that he had picked up a youth to aid him with the driving and that he had $50 with him. Chappell had expected to reach his home on Monday, October 19, the day on which Odell's body had been discovered.

Odell's body had been discovered.

The older victim of the triple slaying now was positively identified as Chappell. Ethridge, the missing brush salesman, was eliminated from the case when he wired from Dallas, Texas, that he had been called to Texas on business. The identity of the younger victim remained a mystery.

The truck offered the best clue to The truck offered the best clue to the identity of the slayer or slayers. Whoever had driven the truck from the murder scene to the point of abandonment beyond DeQueen knew something of the triple slaying and probably was the slayer himself. The murderer might have been on the truck with Chappell and his younger companion as they drove eastward through Oklahoma.

Sheriff Sutton and Sheriff Holman.

Sheriff Sutton and Sheriff Holman Sheriff Sutton and Sheriff Holmanheld a conference. The crimes had been committed in Oklahoma, but the killer evidently had fied into Arkansas. It was agreed that Sheriff Holman would try to trace the truck back through Oklahoma, while Sheriff Sutton would try to determine who had driven the truck through DeQueen.

Extensive questioning by Sheriff Sutton brought the information that J. R. Smith and John Jones, residents of DeQueen, had observed a stranger working on the stalled truck late on the afternoon of Sunday, Oc-late on the afternoon of Sunday, October 18. They had aided in pushing the truck into the lane.

By CHARLES WILLIAM HARMAN.

In all histories of the War Between the States, writers agree unanimously with Horace Greeley that the Battle of Antietam, known in the southland as the Battle of Sharpsburg, was the bloodiest one-day battle in American history. Also, there is unanimous agreement that in the great four-hour battle for possession of Burnside bridge, key to the Confederate right, General Albert Toombs and two Georgia regiments, 2nd and 20th, immortalized themselves, and by unsurpassed bravery and costly sacrifices, long kept the Federal 9th army corps practically impotent.

Now, after 75 years, the most extensive memorialization ever given a battle of this war will be accorded that of Antietam (Sharpsburg) during the period September 4-17. The re-enactment of the battle at Burnside bridge is one of the highlights on the program.

The leading sponsoring agencies of the commemoration are the national Antietam celebration committee, appointed by President Roosevelt; the Maryland state advisory committee, the Hagerstown Chamber of 'Commerce and the Washington County Historical Society.

Coinciding with the national Antietam commemoration are the 200th anniversary of the settling of Washington county and the 175th anniversary of the founding of Hagerstown.

These triple celebrations will follow the lines of a "two century historical review" whereby through pageantry, replicas, restorations, exhibits and countless other means, the story of 200 years of national, state and county history will be un-

The two latter commemorations will be held the 75-acre tract of the Tri-State fairgrounds at Hagerstown. But the climactic day of the triple celebration will take place at the battlefield, September 17, in a nation-wide reunion of the Blue and Gray, with President Roosevelt as the at Hagerstown. outstanding honor guest.

Other distinguished guests will include Col. George B. McClellan, son of General McClellan; Dr. George Rolling Lee, grandson of General Robert E. Lee; Mr. Robert Lincoln Beckwith, great-grandson of President Lincoln. Twenty or more present-day governors, or representatives, of the states whence came the troops that fought at Antietam, will attend the commemoration, as will also distinguished senators, congressmen and countless Invitations have gone out to every surviving veteran of the War Between the States. Acceptveteran of the War Between the States. Acceptances have been received from veterans living as far away as Texas and California. A Confederate veteran, aged 92, requests that the best horse in Maryland be reserved for him to ride. The entire Maryland National Guard and other military units from nearby sister states, numbering approximately 6,000 will welcome the President, distinguished guests, and the old veterans, at the battlefield. These soldiers of the present day will endeavor to re-enact the terrible struggle that took place in and around Bloody Lane and at Burnside bridge three quarters of a century ago.

Here, on September 17, 1862, the army of north-

Here, on September 17, 1862, the army of northern Virginia, commanded by General Lee, engaged in a titanic all-day struggle with the army of the Potomac, commanded by General McClellan. In every way the odds against the Confederates were appalling. Indeed, the Federal forces were so overwhelmingly superior in number and equipment that they faced the Confederate army in the ratio of Daylight had not vanquished darkness when the great battle was opened by Hooker's corps against the Confederate left and when, at sunset, the echo of the last cannon had died away 25,000 in killed and wounded carpeted four miles of rolling hills and deep ravines. Of this number 12,000 were Confederates. In world-famed Bloody Lane alone, 2,000 fell in 20 minutes. At this particular point, historians say, the dead lay four deep.

Another point pre-eminent in mortalities was Miller's cornfield, a 50-acre tract between the East woods and the Hagerstown pike. Here, Brigadier General Wood's brigade, of Hood's division, Longstreet's command, lost 320 out of 550; General Hay's brigade, of Ewell's division, 540 out of 854; the First Texas regiment, 186 out of 226. Fourteen hundred were buried in this confield. Bloody tides also surged around the famous Dunker church; but that night, and for many days afterward, it's shell-and-bullet-torn walls sheltered the wounded of btoh armies.

No less terrible was the struggle for possession of Burnside bridge, pathway to the Confederate right, which was guarded by Toombs and his Georgians. So vital to both armies was this bridge Georgians. So vital to both armies was this bridge that had General Burnside succeeded in his earlier attempts to carry it and thereby thrown his 9th army corps against the Confederate right, neither the matchless strategy of Lee, nor the fighting hearts of Jackson, Longstreet, Hill and others could have saved the Confederate cause from a great disaster. Indeed, it is within the bounds of reason to say, the Battle of Antietam probably would have ended—not in a draw—but in victory for McClellan. for McClellan.

Attempts to Carry Bridge.

Attempts to Carry Bridge.

In a report to General Longstreet, General Toombs states "at 9 o'clock the enemy made their first attempt to carry the bridge by a rapid assault, and was repulsed with great slaughter, and at regular intervals up to 1 o'clock all of which were gallantly met and successfully repulsed by the 2nd and 20th Georgia. Lieutenant-Colonel Holmes, of the 2nd Georgia was killed, Major Harris painfully wounded, and fully one-half of this regiment killed and wounded; the 20th also suffered severely in killed and wounded. Lieutenant-Colonel Holmes who commanded the 2nd Georgia Volunteers, feil near the close of his heroic defense of the passage near the close of his heroic defense of the passage of the Antietam and it is due to him to say that, in my judgment, there was in the army no truer or braver soldier and I have never known a cooler, more efficient or more skillful field officer. Colonel Cummings, of the 20th Georgia, with marked gallantry and skill led his regiment throughout the day and after the long and bloody conflict at the bridge, brought up one of its fragments to the last charge and was amongst the foremost in it."

Additional light is thrown on these two famous Additional light is thrown on these two ramous Georgia regiments by Colonel William Allen in his "The Army of Northern Virginia in 1862." Says Colonel Allen, "a furious artillery fire rained down upon them (2nd and 20th Georgia) and a not less formidable fire of musketry came from every part of the opposite cliff and bank and from immensely currently numbers. Column after column of assault dashed up to the very bridge but still Toombs and his Geo gians held on—held on with no means of replying to the terrible artillery fire—held on after Eubanks' guns had been forced from the face of the hill—on when one-half of their 400 muskets the hill—on when one-half of their 400 muskets were silenced by wounds or death. The 500 Federal soldiers who lay bleeding or dead along the eastern approach were witnesses to the courage of the Federal assault and the deathless courage of the Georgia defenders of the bridge."

The Maryland Historical Magazine, Volume 1,

Burnside Bridge is unchanged in any way except for the approach made by government-built roads. The steps in the background lead up to the Mckinley monument. Robert Toombs and his Georgians held the hill on the right during the fiercest fighting. The monument below is that erected to the Conferedate dead at South Mountain and Antietam.

page 266, states, "General Burnside had been all the forenoon striving to carry the bridge. He de-sired to cross his corps against the Confederate sired to cross his corps against the Confederate right. Here two skeleton regiments of Georgians with a battery or two, disputed the way. Again and again were the Federal assaults repulsed until 400 or 500 Confederates had killed or wounded more of their assailants than their own numbers. Finally, about the time the battle ceased on the other wing, Burnside discovered a ford below, and crossing there, compelled the brave Georgians to leave their post or be captured."

In Freeman's "B. E. Lee" second volume we

In Freeman's "R. E. Lee," second volume, we are told that, after 10 o'clock, four attacks had been directed against the bridge and that the Federals had been repulsed bloodily by the 2nd and 20th Georgia regiments.

Even after so many years the casualties at Burnside bridge, Bloody Lane, historic Dunker church, Miller's cornfield, the East and West woods, still are shocking. In "Campaigns of the Civil War," Scribners 1912, General Palfrey states that at sunset "there were thousands sleeping the sleep that knows no waking, and many times as many thousand suffering all the agonies that attend on wounds." The fields and trees so fresh and green in the morning were reddened with blood and torn in the morning were reddened with blood and torn by bullet and shell, and the very earth was fur-rowed by the incessant impact of lead and iron.

It cannot be definitely stated how many were killed within a period of 12 hours. The graves of more than 4,700 Union dead are in the National cemetery on the battlefield. Of this number 1,848 are unknown. In the Maryland State cemetery in Hagerstown, 3,457 Confederates sleep the last sleep. They constitute 95 per cent of those killed at Antietam. Their names are unknown. But it is known that the army of northern Virginia, at Antietam, was composed of military units from the states of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia.

How the Confederate dead came to be buried in Hagerstown is a story little known. In March, 1865, the state of Maryland appropriated a suitable sum and appointed trustees, to purchase and enclose a plot of ground on the Antietam battlefield as a final resting place for all the soldiers, Union and Confederate, who fell in the great battle and were Confederate, who fell in the great battle and were hastily buried. Over a year was consumed in moving the Federal dead from their shallow graves to the cemetery. But for reasons probably associated with the tempestuous days following Mr. Lincoln's death, and still others that are hidden in the mists of time, the Confederate dead were left to lie.

It was still during this stormy period that land made a second appropriation and appointed a commission of three, consisting of Major Henry Kyd Douglas, of Jackson's staff, Dr. Augustine Mason, a surgeon of the army of northern Vir-ginia, and Major George Fraener, also a former Confederate officer to the control of the Confederate officer, to properly care for the Confederate dead. A tract of ground in Hagerstown was subsequently purchased from the Rose Hill Cemetery Company, and it is here in the Maryland State cemetery, also known as Washington cemetery, they have rested in a lovely spot for almost 70 years. In this cemetery, also, are the bodies of 400 or more Confederates who were killed in the Battle of South Mountain, near Boonsboro, September 14, 1862.

At the entrance to the cemetery stands Mary land's imposing monument which carries this inscription:

"The state of Maryland has provided this cemetery and erected this monument to perpetuate the memory of the Confederate dead who fell in the battles of Antietam and South Mountain."

Of absorbing interest is the story of a lost order that did the utmost harm to General Lee's plans for the invasion of Maryland. It precipitated the battle at South Mountain and the greater one at Antietam, and changed the history of a nation. This was order No. 191 from General Lee detailing fully the movements of every division of the army of northern Virginia during the operations about Harper's ferry and later concentration near Boons-boro, or Hagerstown. Found wrapped around three General McClellan, September 13, and acquainted him fully with the plans of General Lee and the movements of Confederate forces for days to come.

Dr. Douglas Freeman explains the loss thus: "Copies were made at general headquarters for all those division commanders who were to participate in the movement and as D. H. Hill was not formally attached to Jackson's or Longstreet's wings the text was delivered directly to him from general headquarters. Jackson, however, had never been notified that D. H. Hill had been taken from under his central, so he also sent the paper to that been notified that D. H. Hill had been taken from under his control, so he also sent the paper to that officer. This copy from Jackson, Hill carefully preserved. The other, being superfluous, was used by some staff officer of Hill's—the world will never know by whom—to wrap up three cigars against the time when the owner would want them."

JEWEL, the adored red-headed wife of the Can-ada Kid, was in trouble once more.

Despite the begging and nagging of the Kid, she had been caught buzzing around the jewelry counter of a big store again. The Kid, slickest pickpocket in the field, was quite eager and able to provide for them both. But Jewel took professional pride in her work and would not stay at home, where her cooking was her husband's greatest delight.

The bitterest element in this latest grief was the dishonorable double-cross at the hands of Stu Masson, a house-dick at the aforementioned store. Masson had been a city shoofly and the Kid knew him well. And he had made a deal with Masson, unknown to Jewel, of course, that if Jewel felt irresistible kleptomania overwhelming her, he, Masson, should let her steal whatever she wanted to and notify him, the Kid, who would pay for whatever she took . . . In truth, the Kid had a charge account there and his credit was AA.

"Uhu," grouched the Kid. "Now I s'pose Jewel'll sneak back in that store an' swipe some baby-clothes—an' get caught again—an' then she'll have to be about to become a gran'mother for you to beat the rap."

"I guess that was bad," chuckled Pete, rising

"Sure. I had a good mind to move that His Honor slap him down for contempt of court. And if I had, he'd have done it, too," said Pete, with a pleased grin.

"Well, why didn' you?" demanded the Kid.

Because, where larceny is committed, there is more to it than insuring the victim against loss; it is a felony and should be punished as required by the law. Therefore, the bribe was substantial. Now, Masson had violated his word and pinched Jewel cold, with a brooch palmed in her dainty fist. This treachery had cut the Kid deeply. Not that he feared for his wife's liberty; for the Kid had Pete Benninger, the most reliable mouthpiece in the Big Burg, and Pete was a political spark-plug who could spring a client no matter what the evidence. It was Pete who, when a fatfee customer worriedly asked him, "Are you sure you know the law in this case?" who answered, "No, but I'm sure I know the judge."

Jewel and the Kid then accompanied Pete to his offices, where the Kid started peeling large bills off the roll and continued doing so for a considerable period.

Evelyn Keyes in Coterie

It was this that kept her believing she would receive the recognition which came so slowly, because she wanted it so badly, until DeMille opened the doors of filmdom to her by signing her under personal contract after his first brief interview

This was the reason that, three years before going to "the glamor city" she accepted dancing jobs in Birmingham, Charlotte and Nashville as well as modeling jobs in Atlanta. The remuneration from these jobs she added to the fund which was to carry her to Hollywood and success.

Evelyn's mother, Mrs. Maude Keyes, who now makes her home on Sells avenue, had wanted her makes her home on Sells avenue, had wanted her daughter to be a musician. She recognized in the girl the latent talent for artistic expression. Finally one day after she had beseeched her in vain to practice, Evelyn said "Mother, if I were supposed to be a musician nothing could keep me from it. But it just isn't there." After that Mrs. Keyes decided to let Evelyn work out her own destiny and recovered her in her denoing and modeling. encouraged her in her dancing and modeling.

"Evelyn was born in Port Arthur, Texas," said Mrs. Keyes "and the family moved to Atlanta after Mr. Keyes died. Evelyn was then two years old. She attended the public schools and later was graduated from Girls' High school. During these years she studied music, expression and dancing and soon she was being called for dancing jobs."

In 1935 Evelyn was elected queen of the artists' models at the club's annual Beaux Arts ball. This was the first public recognition of her talent and Later, she convinced Universal Studio that she was worth a try. A screen test with dialogue showed improvement over her first effort. Still nothing happened; no contracts were forthcoming. She waited and waited. In the meantime, she wrote letters home telling her mother that she had the feeling something wonderful would happen to her. Sne had not lost hope or enthusiasm.

On May 12, through a meeting arranged by Jeanic MacPherson she had a 15-minute interview with Cecil DeMille. Brief though the meeting, it brought her out of the obscurity which thousands of girls are fighting in Hollywood each day. De-Mile talked with her and questioned her. Then he called in Mr. Pine, his assistant. They decided that Evelyn was star material and told her that she must begin at the dramatic school immediately, with rigid training and no publicity.

were flowers and music and a wedding breakfast, and after the Rev. Freeman A. Kunz had tied the knot, Erna threw her bridal bouquet to her bridesmaids and the couple were off in the trailer that was first to take them on their honeymoon and then become home.

Edward Camb, of Lancaster, N. Y., was another trailer enthusiast who promised to "love, honor and cherish" in the confines of a trailer. Mrs. Camb's wedding was more informal— "a home wedding" she called it—and as Judge Alexander Utecht read the marriage lines in the soft glow of

The deadly liquid being pretty expensive stuff and difficult to procure, Pete decided to go back for it. So with the trailer hitched up again, Pete made another stop at the cemetery before taking to the road once more. But the police had arrived by then and caught him in the act. Baby Anna, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Abbey and brother Lyle, after her birth in the famous and big trailer camp at Sarasota, Fla.

PART II (Conclusion.)

CROSS mountain, desert and plain, through shaded woodland and over glossy highways the na-tion's trailer caravan moves on—with women rebelling and Big Shots of the billion-dollar industry wracking their brains over new gadgets to make the modern "covered wagon" a more home like abode.

The meteoric rise of the trailer industry in the decade since the first "home on wheels" caused thousands to stop and gape, can be credited to two things—the traditional American love of novelty and the inherent restlessness of a people whose creed from the beginning has been to "move on." Thus today we are confronted with the spectacle of over a quarter million trailers roaming the highways and by-ways—with 600 companies vying with each other to produce more comforts and luxuries in the streamlined homes. But what price chromium trimmings, modern showers, richly upholstered furnishings, sensational electric devices, the latest kitchen appurtenances if rebelling women still moan:

"It's not home! Give us back our little cottages and apartments!"

Under the spell of enthusiasm women have been married in trailers, honeymooned in trailers and given birth in trailers. But it doesn't last—as recent surveys have indicated. Eventually those same women want to "settle down." And then the trouble begins -sometimes, as in the recent case of pretty Clarice Orgel, of Cleveland, O., ending in the divorce court, when her husband insisted on roaming in his

Many young couples set off merrily enough on the Great Adventure Erna Schultz and Edmund Jonnsen, of Chicago, spoke their bridal vows in a trailer, it was no makeshift ceremony as the informality of the setting might indicate. Erna was gowned in white satin and veiled in clouds of tulle just as any other bride; there many lamps, the guests envied not only the setting but the venturesome spirit in which this marriage started.

For it does take courage and a venturesome spirit to discard the security of a permanent abode for the uncer-tainties of the road. One of the greatest hazards is the chance acquaintance.

"Living in communities," women point out, "you get to know your next-door neighbors, but roaming from city to city, you never know who's parked alongside of you. The family on the adjoining lot may be folks just like yourselves—and then again, they may be a family like the Worth ingtons!

And women who recall spending long ghts alongside the Worthington nights alongside the Worthington trailer still shiver when they think of "might have happened." For s ("Black Pete") Worthington James ("Black Pete") was described by police as one of the most desperate criminals who ever blew a safe or climbed a second story.

No one would have guessed, as the Worthington trailer cruised along from town to town, occasionally stopping along the road while Mrs. Worthington prepared a meal or pretty 17-yearold Gracie Worthington drew water from a nearby spring, that it housed veritable arsenal, a complete burglar kit and enough nitroglycerine to blow up a city block

But that trailer was Pete's stock in trade. Before he conceived the idea of an "office" on wheels, Pete suffered many annoyances—as did his wife and daughter. Everytime he'd "crack a crib" or lift a jewel, the Worthingtons had to "break up home." Mrs. Worth-Everytime he'd "crack a ington would no sooner get settled in one place than her energetic husband would dash home with the news that they'd have to "take it on the lam."

But how well the trailer home worked out! Pete could pull a job and before the police ever had a clue, the Worthington trailer was miles away—with both home and "office" intact. While police were scratching their heads and looking for fingerprints, Pete and his little family would be parked on some likely lot in another State, with adjacent trailerites boasting about their "nice, new neighbors."

They finally caught up with Pete in Detroit!

Over-confidence in his get-away home finally trapped him. Pete had pulled a job in the office of the Green Lawn Cemetery successfully. Under cover of night, his daughter had driven him to the spot in the car which had been en the trailerites must have wonl about Frank Gordert and his irage, though. There were so in the trailer and just what the ionship between them all was no could quite figure out. The police it figured out, however, and when k was arrested in Columbus, Ohio, oke up a modern harem. For k was traveling with two com-law wives and three of their children.

What the lawmakers of the various States are trying to point out, however, is that this gypsying about in trailers is making it much more difficult for miscreants to be caught.

Young couples touring the country without benefit of clergy need no longer face the embarrassment of registering at hotels, inns or tourist cabins. The trailer is a rendezvous sufficient unto itself. No questions are asked along the road—except in such rare cases as when a few months ago, the American Hotels Association in conducting a survey to determine the growth and permanence of the trailering fad, "covered" the trailer camps and even stopped trailers on the road asking its pertinent questions. The simple question, asked of young couples traveling alone, "Are you on your honeymoon", brought forth some mighty interesting reactions.

Crime problems and moral problems are only two of the many factors with which authorities have had to contend since the trailering boom, however.

The traffic problem is one which has caused many communities to bar the wheeled homes from their con-fines. Motorists claim that the huge trailers bar vision of the road ahead; that they are a menace if driven too fast and a menace if driven too slow.

A. B. Hopkins, of "Trailer Travel", has a word to say in defense of the trailer as a traffic problem, however.

"The average speed at which a trailer and towing car can travel in comfort is between 30 and 40 miles an hour," he says. "On most of the country's highways this is the speed limit, so that a trailer going even at full speed rarely violates the law. The trailer is no more of a menace than the automobile itself."

The problem of taxation which is the bitterest bone of contention between the trailerites and anti-trailerites, cannot be dismissed so lightly, however. Real estate owners, hotel proprietors and other groups who are forced to pay high taxes resent the presence in their communities of trailer camps where dozens of families may live rent free and tax free at their expense. Their complaint is that police, firemen, health officers, school teachers and other public employees serve the transient residents though they do not contribute their share of maintenance costs.

In California the school problem has become acutely serious because of the great number of trailer residents. California, because of its muchvaunted climate has become the mecca of trailer tourists from all over the country. And even as the pioneers of another day, they come to the Golden State, they see—and they stay. The result is that California's schools are crowded to capacity with children from the trailer camps and new schools are constantly being built—at the expense of California's permanent resi-

Both Detroit, Michigan, and Mani-tou Springs, Colorado, have passed stringent laws to combat this problem.

Another bone of contention between the trailerites and many communities is the problem of sanitation. Despite constant improvements by manufacturers in the sanitary facilities, even the most luxurious trailers are condemned as a health menace by some officials. Andrew F. Allen, chief of New York's Department of Health, calls the situation a deplorable one, and says:

"The trailer presents a vital problem as a carrier of communicable disease. The situation is similar to the one we had to combat with the rise of the tourist camps. The combined efforts of the country's health officers must be to remedy what is now a deplorable condition."

If the more sedentary population of the United States has its problems caused by the increasing hordes of trailerites, the trailerites, also have their problems. Not the least of them is "keeping up" with the laws of the various States which they cover in their vagabonding.

Imagine, for instance, the consterna-tion, of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tharp, when they learned that in Iowa, where their trailer was parked for the time being, that it is against the law for a child to be born in a vehicle—just at the very moment the stork was brushing its wings over the Tharp trailer!

It took the combined efforts of five physicians and Papa Tharp himself to raise the trailer on logs so that when Wanda Mae came into the world her birth might be registered as legal.

And you can picture for yourself the plight of Freeman Farmer whose twins were born without medical assistance in a trailer at. Hollister, Cal., the other day.

To women these are all serious problems-problems that militate against the possibility that the entire nation shall ever scrap its homes and take to wheels.

There will always be the brave adventurers, of course, but most of us, thinks Judge Jacob Panken, of New York's Domestic Relations Court, will 'stay put."

"I believe the trailer fad to be an outgrowth of economic conditions," Judge Panken says, "and when economic conditions improve, the fad will die out. After all, our civilization has as its basis the unity and sanctity of family life. The higher the civilization, the more deep-rooted is the family life-and you can't have an orderly family life without permanance of abode. Nomadic tendencies lead to promiscuity and the decadence of a ity and America is far too civilized to race. revert to such an era."

Large cities like New York and Chicago have yet to witness the inroads of the trailer caravans-but New York. at least will have its chance next year, when authentic sources estimate that at least 100,000 trailers will pull in at the World's Fair.

May Be Britain's Queen.

THE PRINCESS ELIZABETH. By Captain Eric Acland. John C. Winston Company, Philadelphia. 118 pp. $1.

In a comfortable house in old London a baby was born on April 21, 1926, who is probably destined some day to become ruler of the largest empire in the world. She was christened Elizabeth Alexandria Mary of York. Captain Acland has written the story of the short life of this little princess who is dear to the hearts of all loyal subjects of the British crown. Here for the first time is revealed the every-day life of the best-loved child in Europe.

Relatives and friends of the royal family aided the author to give children this human story of Her Royal Highness the Princess Elizabeth. The story, written in simple style, will interest grown-ups as well as children. There are twelve full pages of interesting illustrations and a beautiful portrait in colors.

ONE LIFE, ONE KOPECK, by Walter Duranty. Simon & Schuster, New York. 333 pp. $2.50.

The author of "I Write as I Please" has again written as he pleases, and the result is a vivid and gripping story portraying the decadence of Czarist regime, revolt of the army (short of food, munitions and guns while the profiteers waxed rich back home) the gradual growth of Bolshevism, overthrow of the White Russians and finally Bolshevism triumphant.

An outstanding observer, commentator and writer, Duranty has traveled extensively in Russia, lived there some time, speaks the language, and in eminently qualified to write of conditions there now and in the past. His story is not a history of the Bolshevik movement; instead, he takes a peasant boy, first introduced sleeping beside a sow, from whose warm belly he had driven a small a pig, passes him on to be the page of a count, later the companion of the count's son and an object of admiration of the count's daughter.

To shield the young count in an escapade he is banished to Siberia, where he kills the camp commandant and escapes. He meets a Bolshevik who converts him to the cause, goes to war, deserts, returns to Moscow and becomes a leader in the movement.

dents who have selected, in their opinions the 10 best books obtainable at the Carnegie Library, for study.

"My first choice," said Mrs. Sandison, is "Democracy and Education" by John Dewey. This book was published in 1916 and is a sine quo non for those who want to understand the beginnings of modern education. Dewey in this book remembered "the forgotten child" the individual who was far more important than any course or system.

"Education for a Changing Civilization" by William H. Kilpatrick is the second choice on Mrs. Sandison's list. In discussing it she says:

"This book is another fundamental treatise by one of the earliest leaders in modern education. Kilpatrick presents the theory that our material progress has far outstripped our social, spiritual and cultural life and that the function of the schools is to 'catch up' the educational lag."

"If you plan to limit yourself to one book read "Parents Look at Modern Education," by Winifred Bain. It is up to date, simple, comprehensive and impartial. This book, I would say, is third on my selected list."

Pointing out the value and interest in P.-T. A. work the country over,

Nero Wolfe in Action. THE RED BOX. By Rex Stout. Farrar & Rhinehart, New York. 298 pp. $2.

Rex Stout's elephantine, beer-drinking private detective, Nero Wolfe, has become a screen character, graduating from book-size mystery novels and magazine continued stories. This physically inert crime detector is wont to sit at his desk and solve mysteries, so when he actually leaves his habitat and does some personal sleuthing, it stands to reason that he has tackled a case reason that he has tackled a case

Of course he solves the mysterious death, with the inimitable Archie fulfilling his usual part, and then he goes back to observe how his orchids have progressed during his enforced absence.

Fine Dog Story. SILVER CHIEF. By Jack O'Brien. John C. Winston Co., Philadelphia.

Here is a dog story that will apwho love dogs, for it is full of hu-man life and drama, with the thrill of the far north and the courage of men' and women pitted against the eternal cold of that region. It is a heroic tale of the most ancient struggle of man against the elements in which modern innovations-serums, radio and the airplane play a vital part, not to forget Silver Chief, the wonderful and intelligent "huskie."

Parents and Teachers and is a splendid survey readable and informative. Fifth and sixth choice by Mrs. Sandison are paired. They are "Creative Youth" by Hughes Mearns and "Creative Expression" by Hartman and Shunaker. These two books explain why children "love to go" to modern schools. They will make the reader want to go to school again if it were possible, to experience some of the joy of creating that they portray.

Brief and interesting pamphlets of the practical working out of modern education in a public school system form the basis for the selection of Mrs. Sandison's seventh choice. They are "Winnetka" and "Recent Devel-opments in the Winnetka Schools," by Carlton Washburne.

Interest in the individual child is considered by the Atlanta matron in her choice—"The Child Centered School," by Rugg and Shumaker. She says:

"This is a fairly recent interpre-tation and illustration of Dewey's theory of centering education around the interests, needs and capacities of the individual child as a happily functioning member of society."

functioning member of society."

One of the most important books, and very timely, is "Democracy Enters College," by R. L. Duffus, which is named as number nine on the list. "If you are complacent about your college education, dissatisfied about it, or have a child with college intentions, by all means read this most interesting evaluation," said Mrs. Sandison.

that the teacher is the keystone of the modern educational system. Expensive buildings and equipment will make the education process easier, but will do little to improve the fundamental quality of it.

Mrs. Sandison is well qualified to offer Atlantans her choice of her 10 favorite books along this line. She teaches at the Lovett school and her experience was gained through extensive study and work. She taught at the Model School of the Department of Education of Byrn Mawr College known as the Anna Thorne open air school and is herself a graduate of Byrn Mawr. She also attended the John Burroughs school in St. Louis, Mo., which is known as one of the most progressive schools in the country. She also attended school in Baltimore and is well equipped to select the above books.

"The Castle of Contentment" is the first presentation in English of the work of Jaegermester Plov, Den-the work of Jaegermester Plov, Denmark's most popular author.

Against the adventurous background of the mighty Danish Vikings the author brings to you the record of his own life, that of a working Danish farmer. Life in this beautiful country is very interesting, there prevails an atmosphere of peace and contentment which is a marked contrast to the fighting spirit of their powerful forefathers.

The Danes live simply, they are a hard-working people and very neighborly. Their hospitality is their greatest characteristic, their doors are always open to guests who may come and stay as long as they like, and who always receive a hearty welcome from every member of the family. They are taught from early childhood to love and appreciate the wonders of nature. Is not this one reason why to the Danish farmer his wonders of nature. Is not this one reason why to the Danish farmer his ancestral farm home is his most cherished possession?

In short, this work of Jaegermes-ter Plov is a charming picture of Danish country life as well as an outstanding achievement in human philosophy, It can well be said that it is a book that was lived before it was written. SARA TRAYLOR.

THE KIND COMPANION. By Dorothy M. Large. Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York. 158 pp. Ills. $1.50.

The fame of this polgnant, appealing dog story, first published in Ireland, has literally spread by word of mouth across the ocean. It tells of Tim, the little Irish terrier, who loved to range the countryside and chase rabbits and water rats and romp with other dogs. Then his master lost his sight and Tim became his guide and eyes; his master always spoke of Tim as his kind companion. A fine and touching story that will be dear to those who love dogs, and one that will tell others why men and women love dogs. why men and women love dogs.

CAN CHINA SURVIVE? By Hallett Abend and Anthony J. Billingham. Ives Washburn, Inc., New York, 317 pp. $3.

In view of the gradual encroach-ment of the Japanese into China and the recent flare of hostilities that for a short time (and may yet) gave promise of developing into a major war in the Far East, this study of China becomes of intense interest to those who keep abreast of foreign af-fairs and the relations of nations.

After ten years as an eyewitness of civil wars and inroads of the Jap-anese that have beset the so-called republic of China, Mr. Abend has collaborated with his associate to tell the world what chance China has to exist as an entity against the forces that are constantly seeking to sepa-rate or dominate it.

In "Can China Survive?" the authors seek to show just what these forces are and how conditions, internally and externally, are shaping themselves so that the inexitable denouement cannot be delayed much longer

Thrilling days with the Lewis and Thrilling days with the Lewis and Clark expedition is what the title of this story implies, for this historical expedition was building our great country. What might be beyond the waters of the Mississippi, in the great northwest, what did it hold in treasure and adventure? President Lafferson was easer to know the Jefferson was eager to know the secrets of the "unknown lands." He felt that the United States must explore this territory, and to secure a rightful claim to it; he knew just the man to lead such an expedition—it was his friend and neighbor. Morit was his friend and neighbor. Mori it was his friend and neighbor, Meriwether Lewis. This exploring party consisted of some 30 men. The men were drilled by William Clark, who had been chosen as co-leader. In the spring of 1804, the party set out from St. Louis on a journey of 8,000 miles from which they were not to return for hearly two and a half

ing to struggle against the wind, beating rains, treacherous river banks and the hardships of winter. The building of forts in which to spend the winter months are described in an interesting manner. Adventures such as fights with grizzly bears, buffalo hunts, the joy of discovering streams and waterfalls—all of these are in the story of the journey to the Pacific ocean. journey to the Pacific ocean.

This volume of exploration, told in story form, should prove valuable to the student in the study of this particular time in the history of our country, and at the same time it is a good story for those that like to read true adventure with historical background.

"She'll get over it," said the neigh-bors when they heard of what was going on over at the Wickham farm. Mrs. Wickham spent her time in bed reading books and writing poetry. After 38 years of such reading she is undoubtedly the best read woman in Iowa.

Neighbors came to see her after she took to her bed. But she re-fused to see them. Gradually these

But she does not express a single regret over her wasted life. The newspapers announced Mrs. Wickham's death April 2, 1930; aged 75.

Down in the southwest, where it gets very hot indeed, and sunstroke prevails, the state of Texas has declared an official Mother-in-Laws' Day, come regularly March 6, let the interlocutory decrees fall where they may. Gene Howe, who had to do something about it after he referred to his own mother-in-law as his to his own mother-in-law as his "standing army" in a column of his Amarillo newspaper, started the whole thing. In 1934, 2,000 mothers-in-law received homage in Amarillo, decked out in pink sweet peas and forgiv-ing smiles. In another year the thing had become official, due to Governor James V. Alldred's kind offices. The Governor had never heard of the Navajos who are a little to the north of his state, or didn't hold with them. For the most rigid taboo of the Navajo tribe prevents son-in-law and mother-in-law from so much as glimpsing each other. Blindness or death is supposed to result from any collision, even of the eyes, and the reason that no Navajo will shoot a bear is because he believes that all lady-bears hold the spirit of departed mothers-in-law, and he is still scared. They make deals with white hunters to pop off bears, and the white hunters out New Mexico way just love it.

Many long editorials now appear in newspapers all over the country, at the time Texas is observing Mother-in-Laws' Day. Mr. Howe has set the style in placating the embattled ladies for his whole brother-hood of fellow craftsmen. You can have for yourself as to whether the judge for yourself as to whether the day will become of national scope, by reading what Julius Real, former state senator from Texas, published this year on the great day, as a creed for true believers:

4—Show interest in her stories of the "good old days."

Burning Leaves Is Waste

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

Each year when August rolls around we see a few poplar leaves turn yellow and fall to the ground, and immediately our minds turn to the same old subject that we have written about so often before—use leaves, don't burn them! This year we have a little circular that we will be glad to mail to any one of our readers interested in converting leaves into fertilizer quickly. Just drop us a note care The Constitution and your copy will come forward and your copy will come forward quickly.

In this day of science, efficiency experts, and what have you, it is amazing the waste that goes on each year in the matter of garden refuse. From early spring until late fall, weeds and grass are cut and thrown in the trash to be burned. A waste that assumes large proportions, when calculated on a basis of fertilizer, goes on each fall in addition to other garden refuse by those who burn leaves continuously throughout the fall and winter.

The deplorable part is that the leaves are, as a rule, burned in the street. It is in the street that a fire may be an annoyance to every passer-by, a danger to every passing machine, and a waste-a waste of humus, of fertilizer and of wood ashes.

We understand that a few years ago a city ordinance was passed making it illegal to make bonfires of any nature in the streets.

The uses to which garden refuse may be put are almost legion, and their value beyond estimation. When we stop to think, we must remember that the leaves and grass are nature's that the leaves and grass are nature's method of returning to the soil the food that was taken from it during the growing season. Nature has more time than money, so she lets time and moisture do the work and after a year or more the leaves have decomposed sufficiently that the trees can use the food again. In this day and time we haven't the time to wait and time we haven't the time to wait for a year or two and science has stepped in with a method whereby these leaves may be made into a fine manure in a short length of time.

This need of the gardener may be filled by treating these leaves with a chemical compound and allowing them to stand for a short period of

This new scientific method is much easier and quicker than allowing nature to take its course. These same leaves may be converted into real manure by the use of certain chemical compounds that may be pro-cured with little trouble, and applied with even less trouble. The strangwith even less trouble. The strang-est thing about this artificial manure is that thorough field tests have shown that it is either equal to real animal manure or superior to it. These chemical compounds are supplies in the form of powder and are applied by simply dusting them on the leaves

It isn't necessary to wait until a large quantity of leaves are accumulated to start making them into manure. As fast as the leaves are collected, place them in a crate and as each foot is reached apply the cor-rect amount of these powders on the rect amount of these powders on the top and thoroughly soak them down. When another foot has been accumulated apply some more of the powders and soak them down thoroughly again. These layers should be packed into the crate as tightly agreesible. If this system is tightly as possible. If this system is followed it won't be long until you are taking the ripened manure from the bottom of the crate and adding fresh leaves and vegetable matter at the top. A continuous supply of fine manure is available at all times. In this manure there can be no chance of having weed seeds or wild grass

After you have been carrying this or a short length of time you will always have plenty of manure at all times, and at a cost far lower than stable manure. You need not limit yourself to the use of leaves, as almost any non-woody vegetable waste such as grass, weeds, vegetable trimming near and bear vines straw. trimmings, pea and bean vines, straw, corn stalks, and mixed garden refuse may be used.

This method of disposing of garden trash has a number of distinct advantages, an excellent practical method of disposing of garden trash as it accumulates, does away with the dangers involved in burning leaves and trash, but the greatest advantage of all gives your garden a good steady source of supply for fine manure full of humus. There is no better source for humus than is no better source for humus than decayed vegetable and animal mat-

There are several points to be kept in mind in the use of this chemical compound that our English friends have given us.

1. Don't make the pile more than six feet high.

Keep the stack tramped tightly.
 Scatter the powders evenly.
 Don't wash the powders away.
 Keep the pile wet, this is easy in the fall. 6. A covering will hasten fermentation 7. Time necessary, from two to six months. months.

After all we are only hastening the natural processes of rotting by using these chemicals. There is another method that is just as effective but much slower. Perhaps you are fortunate enough to have a large place with a couple of inconspicuous spots that are not being used at the present time and will not be used for a couple of years. If it is the case your problem is easily solved. Dig a shalproblem is easily solved. Dig a shal-low hole, in order to hold the moislow hole, in order to hold the mois-ture, and build around this depres-sion a pen. This low fence may be built of any sort of planks and these planks may be as far apart as six inches without danger of the leaves leaking out. As the leaves and other green materials such as grass, weeds, and vegetable trimmings are accum-ulated place them in this pen and allow them to rot.

Of course, this method is very slow, as it usually takes about two years for them to rot sufficiently that they are of any value, as garden fertilizer. For this rotting process to be finished within two years even it will be necessary that the heap be kept constantly wet. It should never be allowed to dry out as that stops the fermentation process that is being It is well to leave a carried on. small depression in the top and cen-ter of the pile in order that the rain fall will be held as often and as long as possible. With a summer such as we have just been through you can well imagine the trouble involved in keeping even a little pile of fleaves wet at all times and much has any large pen of leaves.

Questions, Answers On Garden Subjects By MRS. FLETCHER PEARSON CROWN

Question: Is it too early to move bearded iris now?

Answer: No; this is a splendid time to get this job done. An excellent gardener told me recently that when she moves and divides her bearded iris she makes a "saddle" her bearded iris she makes a "saddle" on which to rest the rhizome, then works a handful of cottonseed meal into the soil on each side of this saddle. Resting the rhizome on the saddle she pulls the roots down on either side and firmly covers them with soil. Then she places a handful of soil on top of the rhizome to protect it from the heat until it gets adjusted. The leaves of the plant are cut like a fan. The use of cottonseed meal is unusual, but she has had wonderful success, and receives letters from all over the country asking advice about iris. asking advice about iris.

If you haven't already done so, now is a good time to divide your hemerocallis and Siberian iris. I am still rooting cuttings. Just during the past week I rooted more than a dozen torenia cuttings. The old plants had grown leggy and needed to be cut back. I did not like to throw away those pieces, so put them in my away those pieces, so but them in my rooting bed. The stranger was described as being well over six feet tall, weighing about 175 pounds, and as having dark hair. He had been dressed in dark hair. H

At the same time Sheriff Holman was learning that Chappell's truck had stopped at a Holly Creek, Okla, had stopped at a Holly Creek, Okla., filling station on the morning of Odell's murder. Chappell had traded a sack of wheat for gasoline. The filling station attendants recalled that a young man was driving, and that tall, dark-haired man clad in overalls was riding on the sacks of wheat in the rear of the truck. This de-scription checked with that of the man who had abandoned the truck near DeQueen.

Sheriff Sutton was certain now that he was on the trail of the killer, and continued questioning the men who had aided the truck driver.

"Try to recall everything this man aid," he urged Smith and Jones.

"He asked if Paul Babbitt was still farming here near DeQueen, and said he had lived in one of Babbitt's tenant houses about a year ago," the men stated.

Sheriff Sutton knew that two of Babbitt's three tenant houses had been occupied by the same families for several years. Babbitt reported that three men had lived in the house that the years of the years of the years. during the year. One was described as small, and the others of medium height and blonde. These did not fit the description of the man being sought.

"Who lives there now," Sheriff

Sutton asked.

"My brother-in-law, Jim Broad-street," Babbitt reluctantly replied.

Broadstreet had been living in the house only a fev: weeks, having come from another section of the state, Babbitt said. Upon the request of Sheriff Sutton, Babbitt called his brother-in-law. A tall, dark-haired man appeared—and he fitted the description of the man being sought. He denied any knowledge of the triple slaying, but the attitude of both Babbitt and his kinsman aroused the suspicions of the sheriff.

Broadstreet was arrested and placed in jail at DeQueen as the first

Smith and Jones viewed the prisoner and informed Sheriff Sutton that this was not the man who had been driving Chappell's truck. The sheriff asked that the pair say nothing of their decision hearing that the ing of their decision, hoping that the imprisonment of his brother-in-law might cause Babbitt to reveal additional information about his tenants.

The border section had been aroused over the triple slaying, and soon small groups were forming around the jail. Threats of mob violence reached the ears of Babbitt, who hurried to the jail.

"Sheriff," he said, "I remember another man who lived in my house a little over a year ago—he may be the man you want." He seemed greatly perturbed by the threats against his brother-in-law.

Sheriff Sutton already had decided to free Broadstreet to avoid any pos-Broadstreet was set free Sheriff Sutton, accompanied by Babbitt, hurried to Murfreesboro, county seat of Pike county in which Daisy was located, 40 miles northeast of DeQueen. Here the two officers enlisted the aid of Sheriff Matthew Cummings, who knew E. L. Draper.

The officers made their plans.

Before reaching the Draper home Babbitt left the car. Sheriff Cummings informed the elder Draper they were looking for Babbitt. After talking for several minutes, Cummings casually asked:

"How's Charley getting along now,

Mr. Draper?"
"Fine," the father replied. was up here last week, but he's back home now. He's living on the John Epperson place near Idabel."

This was the information Sutton wanted. Speeding to Idabel, he informed Sheriff Holman of what he had learned. It was now late Thursday night, but the officers hurried to the Epperson farm, only to learn that Charley Draper had moved to Millerton, 12 miles west of Idabel.

Epperson named a widow on whose place he believed Draper was living. Again the officers met with living. disappointment. The widow report-ed that Draper had stayed on her place only a day or two. She did not know where he had moved, but recalled that George Collins, of Val-liant, Okla., had moved Draper's household goods away.

The officers pushed on to Valliant. Collins was at the breakfast table. He had moved Draper, he said, but had promised not to reveal his destihad promised not to reveal his desti-nation. Sheriffs Sutton and Holman were certain now that they were hot on the trail of the murderer and that he was in full flight. They warned Collins that he might be arrested for aiding a fugitive, and he readily re-vealed that he had moved Draper to a plantation across Red river in Teyas near Clarksville Texas, near Clarksville.

Collins accompanied the officers on the 20-mile drive to Clarksville, where Sheriff Ross Smiley, City Marshall Jim Geer and Deputy Sheriff Tom Ferguson joined the manhunters. Collins directed them to the John Berry plantation in a re-mote section 12 miles southeast of Clarksville.

Again the quarry had fled ahead pursuit. Tenants on the Berry of pursuit. Tenants on the Berry plantation said Draper had been heavily armed and acted suspicious.

He had moved a few miles away to another farm two days previous. Scouts reported that Draper was living on the Grover Williams plantation, hiding in the woods during the day and sleeping with his guns at night. The officers conferred with Williams and laid their plans.

An hour before dawn, the group closed in upon Draper's house. Williams believed he could entice the suspect into the open with the report that a moonshiner had some whisky for him. The officers concealed themselves at points of vantage. Williams entered the house. There was a wait of several minutes, and then both emerged, Williams in the lead. The pair walked along a trail running past a large tree be-hind which Sheriff Sutton was sta-tioned with a sawed-off shotgun.

The first streaks of the new day ere appearing. Draper had both hands shoved into his overall pockets. Sheriff Sutton could see the outline of a pistol. Draper was nervous, glancing to the right and left. Williams passed Sheriff Sutton's hiding spot. Draper was opposite the tree now. He glanced in the opposite di-rection. Sheriff Sutton jammed his

"Get your hands up or I'll blow daylight through you!" the officer commanded. Draper hesitated. The other officers stepped into view. Slowly, Draper elevated his hands.

Draper refused to talk on the trip to Clarksville. The capture had been made in Texas, so extradition would be necessary unless the prisoner would volunteer to return to Oklahoma.

"Charley, we know you killed those three men, so you might as well con-fess." Sheriff Holman kept repeating to the prisoner.

"Sheriff, I'll tell you the whole story and return to Oklahoma if you'll promise me one thing," the prisoner countered. "My wife is going to have a baby within a few I want you to bring her to Idabel and not put me out of the way until I have a chance to see our

Sheriff Holman agreed, and Draper was rushed to the McCurtain county jail at Idabel. There he unfolded his story of the most heartless slaughter of human beings in the history of southeastern Oklahoma. He said:

"My wife needed a doctor, and I needed money. I had been out in Oklahoma looking for work and caught a ride with old man Chape pell near Holly Springs Sunday morning, October 18. Chappell and the young fellow, who said he was from Antlers, Okla., rode on the front seat and I rode on the sacks of pretty drunk as we rode along. We stopped several times to get gasoline, and I saw that Chappell had a roll of money. After we passed the Futrell filling station, I crept up behind them with my pistel and made hind them with my pistol and made them stop and get off the truck. I marched them into the woods about a half mile and made them undress and walk ahead of me.

"I aimed carefully at the younger man and sent a bullet through his heart. He died instantly. Chappell tried to run, but my first shot brought him down. I shot the old man several times and covered the bodies with brush. I searched their lethes and found about $50. clothes and found about $50.

"I was about a hundred yards from the road when I saw the boy coming on a horse. He saw me before I could hide, and wanted to know if I had killed a deer. I told him I hadn't been hunting, but he insisted I had killed a deer and that he was I had killed a deer and that he was going to have half of it. He drew a

"I then admitted that I had killed a deer and started back into the woods with the boy riding behind me and covering me with his gun. When I came to a large tree, I jumped be-hind it and turned and shot the boy through the head. He fell off the horse and tried to run, but I shot him several more times through the body.

Draper said he searched Odell, but found nothing. He took the boy's pistol and threw it into a creek, drove the truck through DeQueen and un-til the motor stalled. He then caught a ride to Daisy and spent the night with his father. Returning to Okla-homa, Draper said he had arranged for his wife to stay with relatives and had started his flight.

The confessed triple slayer was taken to the scene and re-enacted the killings in every detail. He recovered Odell's pistol, and explained the missing black and white sport shoe that had puzzled the officers in trying to identify the victims.

Draper said the youthful truck driver, as yet unidentified, had one of his shoes off when he marched the pair into the woods. He found the cheeping the trivial of the the the shoe in the truck after the motor stalled, and threw it away. He recovered the shoe near where the truck had been abandoned.

Draper had been captured on October 31, and could not be tried until the regular term of court in De-cember. While awaiting trial he disclosed that he had served a short term in Folsom prison in California for robbery, and that he was an army deserter. He had committed unpardonable sins, he said, and wanted to atone in the death chair. He reatone in the death chair. He requested that no defense attorneys be appointed for him, but that he be allowed to take a collection in the courtroom during his trial to provide for a "respectable funeral."

Late in November a son was born to Mrs. Draper, who had been brought to Idabel by Sheriff Holman, so he had promised. A week before as he had promised. A week before Draper was scheduled to be tried,

Draper was scheduled to be tried, his wife was allowed to take the baby to her husband's cell.

The confessed killer fondled the infant for several minutes, asked that he be allowed to talk to Judge George T. Arnett, before whom he was to be tried. He announced that he was going to plead not guilty and asked that the best defense attorneys possible be appointed to aid him.

"I'm going to beat the chair for

"I'm going to beat the chair for my boy's sake," Draper declared.

Meanwhile, the last angle of the mystery had been cleared when relatives came to Idabel and identified clothing of Chappell's young com-panion as belonging to Eugene Harris. 23, of Antlers, Okla.

Draper was brought to trial for the murder of Chappell on December 8, and pleaded not guilty. L. C. Sprague, M. F. Hudson and Tom Finney, three of the ablest lawyers in the region, had been appointed by the state to defend the destitute prisoner.

Testimony required three days.
County Attorney L. E. Mifflin demanded the death penalty for "the most brutal murderer in the history of Oklahoma." The defense contended that Draper was insanely drunk at the time of the slayings, and at the time of the slayings, and pleaded for mercy. After deliberating 16 hours, the jury found Draper guilty of first degree murder, but fixed his sentence at life imprison-

He had made good his boast to beat the chair.

A wave of bitter resentment spread over the county, so Draper was rushed to the state penitentiary at Mc-Alester and began his sentence. He was not brought to trial for the murder of Odell and Harris.

Mrs. Draper moved to McAlester mir. Draper moved to mean lesser with her infant son to be near her husband. Within less than a year the prisoner made his first move for clemency, complaining of ill health. In 1936, Draper complained that he was suffering from tuberculosis and demanded that he he moved to a demanded that he be moved to a hospital. The prison physician denied that the slayer was a victim of any serious ailment.

In January, 1937, Draper called for the prison warden and announced that he wanted to make a confession.

"I had nothing to do with the kill-ing of those three men," he declared. "I have protected my brother and his wife for four years, and they won't try to help me. I am innocent and now I'm going to tell the truth.

"Harles Draper, my younger brother, and his sweetheart, Miss Floy Stokes, to whom Harles now is married, were on the truck with me that day. When we stopped at the woods to rest, Harles and I walked down the road to take a drink. When we returned, Miss Stokes, Chappell and Harris were gone. We heard a and narris were gone. We heard a commotion in the woods and went to investigate. We found the two men in their underwear trying to assault the girl. Harles killed both of them we covered their bodies with brush.

"Miss Stokes was carrying the pistol as we started back to the road and met Jack Odell. The boy want-ed to know what the shooting was about and jerked out a pistol. Miss about and jerked out a pistol. Miss Stokes shot and killed him. We drove the truck into DeQueen and I left Harles and Miss Stokes there."

The prison warden immediately notified Sheriff Joe Hough, who had succeeded the late Sheriff Holman. The McCurtain county officer visited Charley Draper and learned that his brother, Harles, was living near Dierks, Ark. Accompanied by Sheriff P. G. Coker, of Pike county, Ark., Sheriff Hough arrested Harles Draper and his wife, the mother of a six-month-old son.

"I'm as innocent as that baby," Harles Draper said when informed of his brother's charge against him.

Nevertheless Mr. and Mrs. Harles Draper were returned to Idabel on January 30, and charged with first degree murder while the case was reopened.

Before returning Charley Draper to Idabel to appear against his brother and sister-in-law. Sheriff Hough and County Attorney Howard Phillips decided to question the prisoner in his penitentiary cell.

Armed with Draper's original con-fession, the officials checked every point with the new statement. They soon became convinced that this latest story did not conform with the known facts.

"Charley, your scheme won't work," Sheriff Hough told the life-termer. "You have accused your brother and his wife with the hope that you would be taken to the Idabel jail and find an opportunity to escape. Your brother has convinced me he was nowhere near those woods when you killed those three men."

Sheriff Hough released Mr. and Mrs. Harles Draper on February 5. Charley Draper continues to pay the penalty for the triple slaying in the woods near Ultima Thule.
